This application is a chat room. On the home page, the user needs to enter a username. If the username is already chosen, there will be a red alert when the user will click on enter. He has to choose another username. If the username doesn't already exist, the user enters in the chat room. He can send messages and click on the thumbs up to send a "like" in the conversation. If he clicks on "Users", a new page will open with all the users connected now to the chat room. The user can log out with the button on the top of the page or by exiting the page.
